BOSTON, Oct. 7.—A crowd of great numbers turned out today at Braves' field for the opening game of the world's series of 1916. The Brooklyn team winners of the National League pennant challenging the American League supremacy defended by the Boston club holders of the world's championship of last year proved the object of wide appeal to baseball enthusiasts.

The teams were favored in their first meeting by weather conditions closely approaching the ideal. The day was almost summer like with only a slight tang of autumn in the air which caused some spectators to bring wraps. There was a wind likely to enter into the calculations of fielders. Clouds were fleecy and with no port of rain.

It was in the atmosphere surcharged with current of baseball's great crowd, that groups gathered and exchanged gossip of probabilities of the play.

Manager Carrigan, it is said, has decided to have Hoblitzel play first base throughout the series instead of putting Gainer against a left handed pitcher.

The mass of people who swarmed through the broad reaches of Braves field chosen as the stage for the local game because of its tremendous seating capacity grew rapidly from small groups who had spent the night at the bleacher gates.

The night line was smaller than had preceded any World Series game played in this city in recent years. At daybreak knots of 50 persons each were gathered on the threshold of the park awaiting the opening of the gates. Some slept, others walked about while more eagerly read forecasts of the game in morning newspapers.

Bonfires were lighted to drive off morning mist which came from Charles river.

MAJOR NEELY IS GLADHANDING Has Met a Few of John Smith's Particular Friends This Week.

Major M. M. Neely's campaign for Congress on the Democratic ticket has begun in earnest and the impression prevails that it will be pressed with vigor from now until election day. Today Mr. Neely will make a speech at Mannington and he is booked for a speech at Rivesville tonight. Last night he addressed a good crowd at Worthington.

The day previous he spent some time meeting the boys around town and part of the time he was under the escort of John Smith the big black who used to be regarded as boss of the colored voters of Fairmont and to whom Neely gave a nice comfortable job in Washington.

One of the places Neely and his guide were observed to stop, and do a lot of handshaking was among the hangers on in front of Bill May's Washington street dive which has been figuring rather prominently in the police records of late because of the drunken fights that have occurred among the blacks who frequent it.

Cable Cuts Fingers Off Mine President

R. A. Pollack, president and general manager of the Rivesville Coal Company, operating the Parker Run mine, had two fingers of his right hand cut off yesterday at the mine, when his hand was caught beneath a cable winding on a hoisting drum.

Mr. Pollack was immediately brought to his home at 402 Quincy st., where Dr. J. W. McDonald dressed the injured member. Mr. Pollack stated today that he did not mind the loss of his fingers so much as the inconvenience just at this time when he had planned to take an active part in the fall campaign. He has lived in this city but a short time having formerly been a Republican state senator from Canton, Ohio.

EVERY INDUSTRY AT TOP SPEED

High Prices Cannot Check Business Growth Says Dun.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—R. G. Dun and Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade for this week says:

It is an economic phenomenon that the highest prices of modern times, while causing natural hesitancy in certain quarters, fail to check the growth of business. Costs in many lines, in spite of the previous extensive advance, are still rising steadily and in some cases rapidly, yet each week the magnitude of demand, continuing after months of unprecedented buying, becomes more noteworthy.

There is not an industry of any importance in which orders, following much less than the customary summer abandonment, are not again increasing, and in some branches the expansion is limited it is principally because of the inability or disinclination of manufacturers to commit themselves further. Nearly all of the works throughout the country are covered by contracts extending well into the future and the chief problem confronting producers, as it has been for some time is the question of making deliveries with the desired promptness.

Distribution at retail varies with the weather, but maintains a high average, and even in the region where crop results have been disappointing consumption does not appreciably lessen because of the advanced prices for farm products compensate for the diminished harvests. With the Government report indicating further deterioration, cotton has risen to the highest level since 1910 and of the 101 changes in the 321 commodity quotations regularly compiled by Dun's Review 80 were gains and 21 losses this week.

MUCH MONEY IN SIGHT

Men Who Devised Scheme
Know How Morally Wrong It Is.

(Special Dispatch to West Virginian)

NEW YORK, October 7.—Carefully laid plans of the National Democratic Executive committee to extort a campaign fund of several millions from federal office holders in violation of the spirit of the criminal code and of the civil service act were disclosed at Republican national headquarters today. The plans purpose the raising of this huge fund for the reelection of President Wilson. The framers of the plan are perfectly aware of the fact that they are skating on very thin ice and have striven to direct the procedure of their subordinates so as to enable them to effect a substantial violation of the law without being caught. The men who are endeavoring to put the plans in operation boldly confess to the subordinates upon whom they rely for the actual strongarm work, that they are deliberately seeking to evade the statutory provisions to which, in public and for the purposes of campaign argument, only they make such profuse profession of devotion.

The first drive of the cash collectors for the Democratic committee is aimed at postmasters, but it is specifically set forth that all other Federal appointees as well as are expected to contribute to the Wilson campaign fund. The amount of the levy upon them is ten per cent of one year's salary.

The post office appropriation bill approved by the president July 28 last, carries an item "for compensation to postmasters $31,000,000" the Democratic bagmen are only reasonably successful in holding up postmasters. They can expect to accumulate a fund of many hundreds of thousands of dollars, if not millions, from postmasters alone. And this takes no account at the many thousands of other federal appointees whom these plans of the Democratic campaign committee make specifically subject to the visit of the bagman.

The Democratic framers of these plans for extorting the Wilson campaign funds from federal office holders understand exactly the very delicate legal situation of their scheme. They are careful to set forth in the instructions to the strongarm squad the fact that "of course this is not compulsory" obviously meaning that it is not legally compulsory, but they proceed to state that they are informed that there is to be a permanent organization "of our force throughout the country" this permanent organization is to keep tabs on the federal office holders. A record is to be made "of the loyalty" of those appointees who contribute and of the "disloyalty" of those federal office holders who do not contribute to the Wilson campaign fund. Of course this is a compulsion about a proposition like this. This merely notifies federal office holders on the authority of the national Democratic executive committee, that if they do not "contribute" ten per cent of a years salary to the Wilson campaign fund they will be marked down by the Wilson permanent organization as disloyal.

The instructions to the strongarm squad go ahead to point out that it is in violation of the civil service law to write a letter to a postmaster demanding money for campaign purposes or to call upon the postmasters in the postoffice and ask for a subscription to the campaign fund. The strong arm squad are directed, therefore, to avoid writing to federal appointees or calling upon them in their offices, but are advised to seek private appointments with the federal office holder or to find them at their home or to catch them when they are temporarily off the job.

With this explanation of the legal difficulties in their way the strongarm squad are admonished to "proceed intelligently along these lines" and to contrive "in a legal way" to solicit the federal office holders.

Section 118 of the United States criminal code, which embodies section 12 of the Civil Service Act, deals with another phase of it. It is this latter section to which the framers of the Democratic extortion scheme specifically refer in their instructions to the strong arm squad.

Sections 120 and 121 of the United States Criminal code, which embody sections 13 and 14 of the civil service act, refer to other phases of the matter.

It is obvious that the men who developed the scheme for the National Democratic executive committee, and who are endeavoring to operate it, had these provisions of the law in mind, and have sought deliberately to find the technical loophole which will enable them to contravene the spirit and the purpose of the statute and yet escape the punishment of a five thousand dollar fine or a three year imprisonment or both.
